THE VALUE OF THIS QUESTION MANUAL IN YOUR READING AND STUDY OF THE LODGE HISTORY OF NATIONS

THERE is no method quite so effective in determining just how much we know as to have questions put to us. Questions are a direct challenge to our mental capacity. When questions are asked on subjects, a knowledge of which will materially contribute to our happiness and advancement, they constitute a most useful means to stimulate our desire to be well informed.

This is the reason for our compiling this manual of questions from The Lodge History of Nations. Through the medium of taking, one by one, the nations of history and asking the reader certain relevant questions, there is opened up an immense vista of interest, pregnant with fascinating reading and inspiring study.

These questions are so arranged and classified, that they actually form outlines of interesting reading courses in history. Each question is really a guide-post carrying you forward on a delightful historical tour. You will find references to the page in which the questions are answered. After you have answered the questions under the heading of any one nation, you will discover that you have acquired a surprising amount of knowledge of the country and its people. Further, the history of one nation is so closely related to that of other nations, that your course of reading carries you on and on, and before you realize it you are in possession of an immense fund of information.

This manual will introduce you in the most interesting manner possible to one of the great histories of our day. The Lodge History of Nations is unique in its plan of presenting history, for here is told the story of each nation, in a single volume, so that you may read it as you would read the biography of a man. It is in a class by itself as a modern scientific work of compelling interest, compact, scholarly and complete, a series of historical masterpieces, written in narrative form.

As you approach The Lodge History of Nations through this question manual, you will find a living, throbbing story of men and women, their ambitions, their heart-aches, their struggles, defeats and victories. It portrays vividly the drama of progress and achievement. It tells the story of the social and industrial development of all peoples and all nations. In breadth of design it is not limited to wars, governments, and political parties, but it is also a history of manners and customs, of finance and business, of art and literature, of education and invention, of law, and of science.

The Lodge History of Nations relates the deep-down, behind-the-scenes stories of nations, as the modern busy man would like to have them told. Here is history that has the thrill of fiction coupled with the authority of great names. These twenty-five superb volumes were prepared under the editorial supervision of Henry Cabot Lodge, famous statesman, together with probably the most distinguished group of scholars who have ever collaborated on a historical work. As Andrew D. White, former President of Cornell University and Ambassador to Germany said, "It is the only existing set of books which contains in readable form a complete and authoritative world history by modern historians."

Your reading of The Lodge History of Nations will open up for you a vast perspective of great events, down through the ages to the present day, which have shaped the destinies of nations and of peoples. Here, then, await you many hours of pleasure, and an educational stimulus, invaluable to every member of your family.
